

The Mystery and Mattering of More Loving and Healing

Among the many whispers of Katrina and its aftermath: Blame. As so many rush to blame one another, it becomes increasingly clear: Blame is an anesthetic numbing the fears and pains; it obscures the horrible ravages of loneliness and despair. As the physical repairs are made, what happens to the emotional, mental, and spiritual damage?

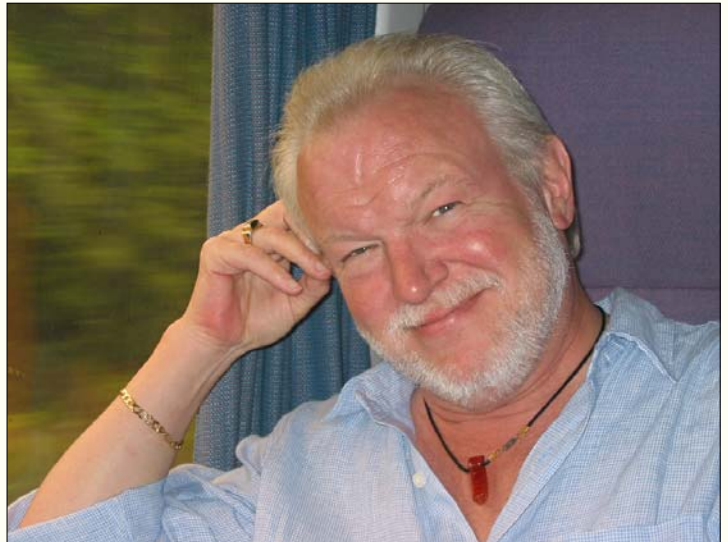

Come with us to New Orleans. No. It is not a time to admonish and blame. It's a time for more loving and more healing. — Lazaris

The Mystery and Mattering of More Loving and Healing

A Very Special Congress of Magicians, Saturday / Sunday, April 29/30

Among the many whispers of Katrina and its aftermath: Blame. As so many rush to blame one another, it becomes increasingly clear: Blame is an anesthetic numbing the fears and pains; it obscures the horrible ravages of loneliness and despair. As the physical repairs are made, what happens to the emotional, mental, and spiritual damage?

Come with us to New Orleans. No. It is not a time to admonish and blame. It's a time for more loving and more healing. — Lazaris

Throughout the Ages magicians have heard the call to gather at a sacred place — a place of enchanting love, of ineffable beauty, and of fascinating mystery — to work magic together: to work magic as one. Responding, each would set down the stuff of their daily life and travel distances near and far to do what magicians do: to work magic.

Lazaris has designed a weekend ... a different kind of workshop ... for healing in New Orleans. As with other Congress of Magicians events, these two days will not be about learning new techniques or exploring new ideas. The focus will be on emotional, mental, and spiritual healing for the hearts and minds and souls and spirits of the people who were so ravaged by Hurricane Katrina and its aftermath – and on healing for the land.

With Lazaris at our sides, we will come together to do what magicians do: We will come together to work magic, to love, and to heal. Those of you already involved with Concept: Synergy who live in the Gulf Coast area affected by Katrina are invited to register for this event as guests of Lazaris and Concept: Synergy. Others, 100% of the ticket proceeds will be donated to the American Red Cross and designated for Hurricane Katrina Relief in the Gulf Coast area. Come join Lazaris for a poignant healing journey to New Orleans. Welcome ...
